

Gardening Resource Links for 3/11/2023 Oakmont News Article

OVA Plant Policies

Either visit the OVA Architectural Office or go to www.oakmontvillage.com and SEARCH on “Do Not Plant List” for valuable links to assist with firewise planting.

Resource links in article:

Sonoma County Master Gardeners (<https://sonomamg.ucanr.edu/>)

University of Calif., Integrated Pest Management (<https://ipm.ucanr.edu/>)

University of California, The California Backyard (<https://homeorchard.ucanr.edu/>)

CalScape (<https://calscape.org/>)

Sanhedrin Nursery Blog (<http://sanhedrinnursery.com/>)

Sonoma Ecology Center (<https://sonomaecologycenter.org/>)

Local Nurseries:

- California Flora Nursery <https://calfloranursery.com/>: The Bay area's oldest native plant nursery.
- Urban Tree Farm <https://www.urbantreefarm.com/>: The largest selection of container-grown trees & shrubs in California.
- Harmony Farm Supply <https://www.harmonyfarm.com/>: Great garden supply store and nursery north of Sebastopol.
- Prickett's Nursery <http://prickettsnursery.com/>: A nursery just down the road from Oakmont and in Healdsburg.
- Swede's Feeds in Kenwood <https://www.swedesfeeds.com/>: A fun nursery with a little bit of everything and outdoor art.
- -Emerisa Gardens <https://emerisa.com/>: A wholesale & retail nursery with lots of unusual & common plants.
- Annie's Annuals <https://anniesannuals.com/>: Although in Richmond, the online catalog alone is worth a peek.

A big thank you to these avid Oakmont gardeners for their input to this article: Stephanie Wrightson, Carolyn Greene, Vicki Chase, and Jenny Watts (also see her book via Amazon: A Year in the Garden . . .). As for Shirley, she's a life-long organic gardener, Illinois farm girl and now, retired Academic Reference & Research Librarian and fascinated by West-Coast gardening. Happy Gardening!